

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A detent disk for an overload coupling part has a detent disk body configured as a powder-metallurgy produced disk body, the detent disk body has a substantially uniform wall thickness and an inner circumference, and at least one driving device for driving in a rotary manner is provided on the inner circumference and configured as a driving pocket.